

PixelDrive Privacy Policy

Posted: 29 August 2018

Effective: 29 August 2018

Welcome to PixelDrive! Our goal is to offer you the best cloud image storing service, in a unified platform from compression and storage to easy sharing with your friends, family and (if desired), to a global audience. Here we describe how we collect, use and handle your personal information when you use our websites, software and services (“Services”).

What & Why

We collect and use the following information to provide, improve and protect our Services:

Account information. We collect, and associate with your account, the information you provide to us when you do things such as sign up for your account and upgrade to a paid plan (such as your name, email address, phone number, payment info and physical address). Some of our Services let you create and access your accounts and your information via other service providers, such as Facebook and Google.

Your Uploads. Our Services are designed to make it simple for you to store your files, documents, photos and so on (“Your Uploads”). To make that possible, we store, process and transmit Your Uploads as well as information related to it. This related information includes your profile information, as well as things like the size of the file, the time it was uploaded and usage activity. Our Services provide you with different options for sharing Your Uploads.

Contacts. You can choose to give us access to your contacts to make it easy for you to do things like share Your Uploads, send messages and invite others to use the Services. If you do, we’ll store those contacts on our servers for you to use.

Usage information. We collect information relating to how you use the Services, including actions you take in your account (such as sharing, editing, viewing and moving files or folders). We use this information to improve our Services, develop new services and features, and protect PixelDrive users.

Device information. We also collect information from and about the devices you use to access the Services. This includes things like IP addresses, the type of browser and device you use, the web page you visited before coming to our sites, and identifiers associated with your devices. Your devices (depending on their settings) may also transmit location information to the Services.

Cookies and other technologies. We use technologies such as cookies to provide, improve, protect and promote our Services. For example, cookies help us with things like remembering your username for your next visit, understanding how you are interacting with our Services, and improving them based on that information. You can set your browser to not accept cookies, but this may limit your ability to use the Services.

Marketing. We give users the option to use some of our Services free of charge. These free Services are made possible by the fact that some users upgrade to one of our paid Services. If you register for our free Services, we will, from time to time, send you information about upgrades when permissible. Users who receive these marketing materials can opt out at any time. If you do not want to receive marketing materials from us, simply click the 'Unsubscribe' link in any email. We sometimes contact people who do not have a PixelDrive account. If you do not wish to be contacted by us again, please opt out at any time by clicking 'Unsubscribe' link in any email.

Bases for processing your data. We collect and use the personal data described above in order to provide you with the Services in a reliable and secure manner. We also collect and use personal data for our legitimate business needs. To the extent that we process your personal data for other purposes, we ask for your consent in advance or require our partners to obtain such consent.

With whom

We may share information as discussed below.

Others working for and with PixelDrive. PixelDrive uses certain trusted third parties (such as providers of marketing) to help us provide, improve, protect and promote our Services. These third parties will only access your information to perform tasks on our behalf in compliance with this Privacy Policy, and we'll remain responsible for their handling of your information per our instructions.

Other users. Our Services display information such as your name, profile picture, device and email address to other users in places like your user profile and sharing notifications. You can also share Your Uploads with other users if you choose. When you register your PixelDrive account with an email address on a domain owned by your employer or organisation, we may help collaborators and administrators find you and your team by making some of your basic information – such as your name, team name, profile picture and email address – visible to other users on the same domain.

Certain features let you make additional information available to others.

Other applications. You can also give third-party providers access to your information and account, for example via when you connect to External Storages. Just remember that their use of your information will be governed by their privacy policies and terms.

Law & order and the public interest. We may disclose your information to third parties if we determine that such disclosure is reasonably necessary to: (a) comply with any applicable law, regulation, legal process or appropriate government request; (b) protect any person from death or serious bodily harm; (c) prevent fraud or abuse of PixelDrive or our users; (d) protect PixelDrive's rights, property, safety or interest; or (e) perform a task carried out in the public interest.

Stewardship of your data is critical to us and a responsibility that we embrace. We believe that your data should receive the same legal protections regardless of whether it's stored on our Services or on your home computer's hard drive.

How

User controls. You can access, amend, download and delete your personal information by logging in to your PixelDrive account and going to your account settings page.

Retention. When you sign up for an account with us, we'll retain information you store on our Services for as long as your account is in existence or for as long as we need it to provide you with the Services. If you delete your account, we will initiate deletion of this information after 30 days. But please note: (1) there might be some latency in deleting this information from our servers and backup storage, and (2) we may retain this information if necessary to comply with our legal obligations, resolve disputes or enforce our agreements.

Where

Around the world. To provide you with the Services, we may store, process and transmit information in the United States and locations around the world, including outside your country. Information may also be stored locally on the devices you use to access the Services.

Changes

If we are involved in a reorganisation, merger, acquisition or sale of our assets, your information may be transferred as part of that deal. We will notify you (for example, via a message to the email address associated with your account) of any such deal, and outline your choices in that event.

We may revise this Privacy Policy from time to time, and will post the most current version on our website. If a revision meaningfully reduces your rights, we will notify you.

Your right to control and access your information

You have control over your personal information and how it is collected, used and shared. For example, you have a right to:

- Erase or delete all or some of Your Uploads in your PixelDrive account.
- Change or correct personal data. You can manage your account and the content contained in it, as well as edit some of your personal data, through your account settings page.
- Access and take your data. You can download a copy of Your Uploads in a machine-readable format.

Contact

Your personal information is controlled by MLVX Technologies Inc. (A Canadian BC Corporation, headquartered in Vancouver, BC, Canada). Do you have questions or concerns about PixelDrive, our Services and privacy? Contact us at hello@pixeldrive.co If we can't answer your question, you have the right to contact your local data protection supervisory authority.